

11 - Emergency Medicine in Medical Schools

(Adopted 10/11)

The American College of Osteopathic Emergency Physicians (ACOEP) believes that an academic Department of Emergency Medicine should be included in the framework of every medical school that will be responsible for the development of educational curriculum in emergency medicine and teaching courses in emergency medicine. These departments will be free-standing and equal in status to other specialties of medicine within the structure of the medical school.