President's Report. Dr. Kuchinski presented his report as written. His report covered the first six months of his presidency. He reported on changes in the Administrative Aspects course which was piloted in January 2001 and the concerns voiced by participants at this course concerning the hotel room costs. He also urged members to utilize the college-endorsed travel agency to extend travel benefits to the programs.

President-elect's Report. Dr. Scali presented his report as written. His report covered the first six months in office. His report stressed that the College is no longer a small group of physicians working in community hospitals. He stressed that many of our physicians are now in leadership positions in those hospitals and can shape the involvement of that hospital in the now-forming consortium for research. He urged that members get involved in the research consortium and the Foundation.

She asked members for feedback in the reporting method of the College and gave a brief summary of her involvement as Liaison to the AOBEM and her work with the Student Chapter of the College.

Dr. McGee reported that the ACOEP's interim financial report shows that even though the projected income for the Intense Review and the Spring Seminar, projected spending has been less than planned. A motion was made and seconded that the policy on Emergency Telephone Advice be approved:

EMERGENCY DEPARTMENT TELEPHONE ADVICE

The public often views the emergency department as a source of medical information.

It is recognized that despite the inadequacies in the appropriate evaluation of patients via a telephone, the expectations of the public continue to exist in regards to the availability of medical information from the emergency department via telephone.

It is the recommendation of the American College of Osteopathic Emergency Physicians that emergency physicians do not provide routine medical advice via the telephone.

When hospitals decide to provide telephone medical advice, the American College of Osteopathic Emergency Physicians recommends to its members the following:

- a. Individuals describing potential life or limb threatening emergencies should be instructed to call 9-1-1 or seek emergency care.
- b. Hospitals that choose to serve as a medical advice line should ensure the following:
 - i. Individuals providing the service should receive training specific to the service provided.
 - ii. Individuals providing the service should be covered with appropriate malpractice insurance
 - iii. Assessment and treatment should follow algorithms that conform to recognized practice standards of emergency medicine.
 - iv. complete documentation of each call.
 - v. A CQI process should be in place.
 - vi. Emergency Departments should have formalized procedures on how medical advice via the telephone is provided.

Publications. Dr. Koch presented the Committee's report as written. Dr. Koch reported on the content of the College's publication, website content and layout, photography, and advertising.

There being no further business, the Directors meeting was adjourned at 1:45 p.m. by the President, Joseph J. Kuchinski, D.O., FACOEP.

Respectfully submitted,

Paula J. Willoughby, D.O., FACOEP
