Osteopathic Medicine: Growth and Impact

By the Numbers

- » More than 197,000 osteopathic physicians and students are practicing or training in the United States, an increase of about 70% over the past decade.
- » More than 11% of all physicians in the U.S. are DOs, a number that continues to rise each year.
- » Nearly 28% of U.S. medical students are enrolled in osteopathic medical schools, reflecting a growing preference for osteopathic education.
- » The number of students pursuing osteopathic medical education has grown by approximately 66% over the past decade, ensuring a strong pipeline of future physicians.
- » There are 42 colleges of osteopathic medicine operating across 67 campuses nationwide, with new programs and locations continuing to expand the profession's reach.
- » Osteopathic physicians are increasingly shaping the future of emergency medicine. In the 2025 NRMP Match, 1,078 DO applicants matched into Emergency Medicine, the highest number since the single accreditation system began.
- » Emergency medicine achieved a 97.9% fill rate in 2025, up from 95.5% in 2024 and 81.8% in 2023, signaling renewed interest and strength in the specialty.

With more than 197,000 osteopathic physicians and students in the United States and a 70% increase in osteopathic representation over the past decade, osteopathic medicine is one of the fastest growing segments of the healthcare workforce. Nearly 28% of all medical students now choose osteopathic programs, and DOs make up more than 11% of the physician population. This expansion is supported by 42 colleges of osteopathic medicine across 67 campuses, ensuring a robust and steadily growing pipeline of physicians trained in whole-person, patient-centered care.

The impact of this growth is especially visible in emergency medicine. In 2025, 1,078 osteopathic applicants matched into Emergency Medicine, the highest number since the single accreditation system was introduced. With 3,003 of 3,068 positions filled and a 97.9% fill rate, the specialty continues to strengthen, and DO physicians are playing a critical and increasing role in emergency departments across the country.

ACOEP is at the heart of this momentum, representing over 2,000 emergency physicians, residents, and students nationwide. Our programs, events, and community create unparalleled opportunities for education, collaboration, and industry engagement with the leaders shaping the future of emergency care. Each year, ACOEP hosts two national conferences that each draw more than 400 attendees, with nearly a quarter of participants being residents and medical students, ensuring that industry partners can connect not only with today's emergency medicine leaders but also with the next generation of physicians shaping the specialty's future.
