

Dear Medical School Administrator,

At the American College of Osteopathic Emergency Physicians Resident and Student Organization (ACOEP-RSO), we are committed to supporting the next generation of emergency medicine leaders through connection, education, and mentorship.

Your student currently serves as a leader in an Emergency Medicine Interest Group (EMIG) recognized by ACOEP-RSO. As outlined in our bylaws, each nationally recognized EMIG is required to have a representative in attendance at the ACOEP Spring Seminar on April 20th and 21st 2026 in Orlando, Florida to maintain national recognition. We strongly encourage the EMIG President or National Liaison to attend. If neither is available, another Executive Board member may represent the group in their place.

Attendance at the Spring Seminar is more than a formality. These events offer student leaders valuable opportunities to connect with peers from across the country, build relationships with mentors and program directors, and bring back ideas and resources to strengthen their home institutions. Many students who attend this event go on to serve in national leadership roles and build the relationships that help them stand out during the Match process.

We understand that obtaining time away from school can be a challenge, particularly during the clinical years. However, we firmly believe that participation in this event is a significant investment in a student's academic and professional development—as well as a key step in maintaining active engagement between your institution and the national EM community.

To give you a better sense of what students gain from this experience, here is a list of our typical conference offerings:

- World-class lectures from internationally renowned speakers
- High-fidelity simulation sessions
- One-on-one and small group mentoring
- Residency speed dating and fair

Should you have any questions or need additional information, our Director of Student Affairs is available at: DOSA.ACOEP.RSO@acoep.org

Thank you for supporting your student's commitment to leadership and to the future of emergency medicine.

Sincerely,

The ACOEP-RSO Executive Board
